Red symbols indicate internal characteristics.
Green symbols indicate external characteristics.
